Magic in Africa

Yanga is smiling - he is a South African with hope, a young person with a dream. This is true, despite his tragic situation. At 12 years of age, since both his parents have died, he has been left to fend for himself with the help of a teenaged cousin in the informal settlement of Khayelitsha, Cape Town. Yanga's secret - he has "magic" in his life.

Yanga attends the College of Magic. It is a non-profit, performing arts training organisation situated in Cape Town, South Africa. Over the past 27 years the College of Magic has touched and transformed the lives of girls and boys through innovative programmes in the art of magic. Along with Yanga, close to 150 young people from diverse backgrounds gather each week at this centre of magic.

"Magic" is a universal language that motivates and excites young people. In Africa the art of magic has been found to be surprisingly beneficial, easily transportable and able to generate wealth and community pride. Thousands of young people like Yanga, their families and their communities have benefited from the College of Magic's programmes. Yanga may one day even join the staff of 20 voluntary instructors, graduates of the organisation, who have come back to share the inspiration they received. If you would like to discover more, please visit www.collegeofmagic.com

How can we assure Yanga's future? The College of Magic needs to guarantee that the training of our young people at risk will be ongoing. The College of Magic is bursting at the seams and there is a desperate need to consolidate and develop our home - so that not only Yanga's training may continue - but that imaginations are set free and the magic may continue to flourish. To meet these needs we have launched our campaign, "13 Magical Milestones"!

Make Young Dreams Come True!

The "13 Magical Milestones" capital fundraising campaign aims to raise 1.3 million South African rand (or $186 000 US Dollars) during 2007. Our campaign has the magical number 13 at its heart! As the campaign unfolds during 2007 each of the 13 milestones will bring us closer to our dream. We invite you to become a 'dream-maker'... you truly can add some magic to a young person's life in 2 easy steps:

1 Visit our website at www.13magicalmilestones.com and donate online using PayPal, Visa and Mastercard. All donations will be acknowledged by a personal letter and thank you token from a young South African magician.

2 Be a visible part of our dream! Complete the tear off slip alongside, and return by post in the envelope. Don't forget to fill the "magic block" with your artistic contribution. These blocks will be used to compose a giant mosaic in the new Imagination Centre at the College of Magic. (Visit us in Cape Town, South Africa in the future to view your contribution!)

Donations in excess of $150 will be acknowledged on our "Magic Wand" recognition panel:

- $150: BRONZE
- $700: SILVER
- $3000: GOLD
- $7000: PLATINUM

Do you believe in magic? Our students certainly do! Help us to make 2007's "13 Magical Milestones" a reality, and give our students, friends, supporters and South Africa a magical home to be proud of and a magical future to dream about!
